GOOD NEWS FOR HOMEMAKERS

PREPARE TO SERVE HOLIDAY FOOD SAFELY

Good cleanliness procedures in the kitchen are a daily safeguard against foodborne illness. In order to maintain a healthy environment during holiday meals, planning to serve and store foods in quantity is an additional consideration.

A major concern should be keeping food cold or hot enough to prevent the growth and spread of harmful bacteria. Conside the number of guests, the menu and the quantities of food. Be sure there is adequate refrigerator space, heating units and hot serving aids on hand to maintain correct temperatures.

Extend cold storage by cleaning out the refrigerator, use or discard leftovers. Insulated picnic hampers and cold chests, packed with ice, can keep foods cold for several hours.

Perishable foods should not be allowed to stand at room temperature for long periods of time, in some instances no more than two hours. These include cream pies, creamed vegetables, seafoods and dishes made with eggs, meat and poultry. For example, a favorite meal may include roast beef with pan drippings. If not served correctly, it can be a perfect medium for bacteria to grow and develop! The inside of the meat should be hot. Heat the pan drippings to the boiling point before serving. Don't let the meat stand at room temperature more than two hours; refrigerate leftovers promptly. If gravy or drippings are kept for a second meal, boil them a few minutes before serving.

Sanitary food handling is of equal importance. Wash hands, utensils, countertops and cutting boards with sudsy water before and after working with food, especially raw meat or poultry. Salmonella bacteria may spread when these items are prepared in conjunction with other foods. For instance, if a knife is used to cut raw meat, then used for chopping salad vegetables, the knife, hands and cutting boards should be washed thoroughly in suds. If this is not done, the bacteria from the meat would transfer a team of Salmonellae to the vegetables, though warm on the meat would be destroyed in cooking.

Certain precautions are advisable in preparing a holiday turkey. The larger the bird, the longer it takes to defrost. It can be thawed in the refrigerator. If it must be thawed more quickly, seal in a water-tight plastic bag and immerse in cold water. Defrosting at room temperature invites possible bacteria growth.

Cook thoroughly and at one time. Never partially cook poultry with the idea of finishing later. Bacteria may survive. Stuffing is especially vunerable to bacteria growth. It is safest cooked separately. However, if it is cooked in the turkey cavity, be sure cooking is complete. Also, prepare the mixture and stuff the turkey just before putting into the oven - never the night before. If using commercially frozen stuffed poultry, never defrost before baking.

Plan a preparation timetable beginning with foods that can be cooked well in advance and frozen, those that can be refrigerator-stored for a day or so, to dishes which can be made the day of the dinner.

The same rule: Keep -Hot foods hot and keep-cold foods cold - apply for a buffet meal. Yet, it is likely that food will be served over a longer time span so make arrangements for maximum safety. Display quantities that will be eaten readily - replenish from the refrigerator or range-oven as needed.

Have adequate serving and storage dishes, platters, bowls, cookware and utensils ready. Some things, used only occasionally, may need to be washed first.

Finally set up the kitchen for easy cleanup and fast storage. Have clean dishes and containers for leftovers available and large trash bags for garbage. For handwashing, fill a pan with hot suds to soak utensils. Rinse and place stemware and other delicate pieces in an out-of-the-way corner, to prevent breakage before washing and storing them. Wash knives separately, to avoid accidents. If there is a dishwasher in the kitchen, load dishes and utensils as they are used. The appliance can run while you enjoy the meal or entertain. Plenty of clean sponges, dish towels, hand towels and/or paper towels, detergent or soap facilitate "continuous" cleanup. Do not use the same towel to wipe dishes as is used to dry hands.

Keep the mood festive by eliminating any chance of a foodborn illness spoiling the fun. Strict cleanliness and proper food handling, preparation, serving and cleanup will insure a pleasant and healthy time for all!

County's First Home Demonstration Agent Honored

Mrs. Anderson began working in Appomattox County as its first Home Demonstration Agent on July 1, 1936. Three months prior to that date she was busy organizing Home Demonstration Clubs in the county. In May 1936, the following clubs were organized: Wreck Island, Oakville, Spout Spring, Appomattox, Rocks, Stonewall, Lee, Trinity, Hixburg, and Pamplin.

The first leader training meeting was held June 29, 1936 on Home Canning of Fruits, Vegetables and meats. The first county-wide picnic was at Tomahawanda Lake on Sept. 3, 1936.

On Oct. 30, 1936 the first county-wide Achievement Day Program was held with approximately 200 present. The first program planning meeting was held on Nov. 3, 1936. Subjects selected for club demonstrations were on food preparation and yard improvement.

More Home Demonstration Clubs were organized as interests grew. Bethany club was organized April 15, 1937 and others that organized soon after that were: Evergreen, Glendale, Hollywood-Vera, Liberty Chapel, Wildway, and Woodland-Petty's Fork. Some of the clubs merged with others, namely: Bethany and Evergreen; Glendale and Woodland; Liberty Chapel and Wildway; and some fell by the wayside leaving an average of around 15 clubs most of the time.

Mrs. Anderson worked faithfully with these clubs from 1936 until 1960. In 1972 the Home Demonstration name was changed to Extension Homemakers Club.

Mrs. Trent, in presenting the history to Mrs. Anderson paid tribute to her as follows:

"Did you ever realize that people are very much like stained glass windows. When the sun in shinning through them brightly they glow and sparkle, but when the sun goes down and it is dark and gloomy outside, their true beauty is revealed only if there is a light from within.

A person will find that happiness in this world mainly depends on the work he does and the way in which he does it.

He who brings sunshine into the life of another has sunshine in his own.

Giving of yourself, learning be tolerant, giving recognition and approval to others, remaining flexible enough to mature and learn yields happiness, harmony, contentment and productivity. These are the qualities of a rich life, the bounteous harvest of getting along with people.

The previous statements do truly describe a special lady in our midst. This person began her long and meaningful career in Appomattox County 40 years ago when she was responsible for beginnings of home demonstration work in this area.

She gave unselfishly of her time, talent and energy for 24 years. Then she went to Kentucky where she served as home furnishings specialist before returning to her beloved Appomattox. When she retired from extension, she returned to our community where she continued to give leadership to extension homemaker's activities.

Today, our 40th Anniversary

Appomattox County Extension Homemakers Achievement Day

"Virginia, Our Mother State" was the theme of the Appomattox Extension Homemakers Achievement Day at Appomattox County High School Nov. 6.

Ninety-six Extension Home Makers and friends enjoyed an interesting program presided over by Mrs. Isabelle Coleman, County Chairman. There were nine charter members present. Also present was Mrs. Ella Anderson, our very first Home Extension Agent (then called Home Demonstration Agent) who began her work in the county July 1, 1936. In appreciation of her continued interest and help in extension work, Mrs. Anderson was presented with a compiled History of Appomattox Extension Work. The presentation was made by Mrs. Florence Trent, past County Chairman.

Mrs. Louise Plunkett modernized the showing of our Bicentennial tapestry which is composed of 102 12-in. squares prepared by homemakers in counties and cities across the state of Virginia to depict a significant part of that area.

Reading certificates were presented by Mrs. Georgia Fleshman, County Federatin Goal Chairman.

A fellowship period including a viewing of exhibits, receiving potted plants as favors and refreshments followed the program.
